

USER MANUAL

In order for any user to access the cambuzz, first, the cambuzz index page must be loaded onto a browser with standard internet connection.

For any new user, he /she must create an account. The index page consists of both the signup and login page. For creating an account, the details on the signup form must be filled correctly and clicking the signup button will create an account for the user and he/she will be redirected to the home page. All fields in the signup form are mandatory ( Screenshot B.1 ). The authority user doesn't require to signup because they are already provided with a valid account.

After the account has been created successfully the user is redirected to the login page where the user can enter his/her login credentials ( Screenshot B.2 ).

The user will be redirected to the profile page after the successful login (Screenshot B.3 ). The details about the user which was provided on signup will be displayed on the left side of the page with a profile picture which he/she can change using the edit profile option provided. The edit profile ( account setting ) page is meant for updating some basic information about the user and with a password change option (Screenshot B.4 ). User can return to the profile page using the back button. The user posts to wall page are to be posted from the profile page itself (Screenshot B.5 ). For the user to make posts to wall page, the post section in the profile page have to fill with appropriate details – picture or text and must click the post button. The post will be updated on the profile page and as well as in the wall page ( Screenshot B.6 ).

For any user who forgotten his/her password, the password can be reset using the Forgot password option provided on the login page. The password reset requires the user to enter the main credentials of his/her account and once verified the user will be provide with a temporary password which can be changed at any time (Screenshot B.7 ).

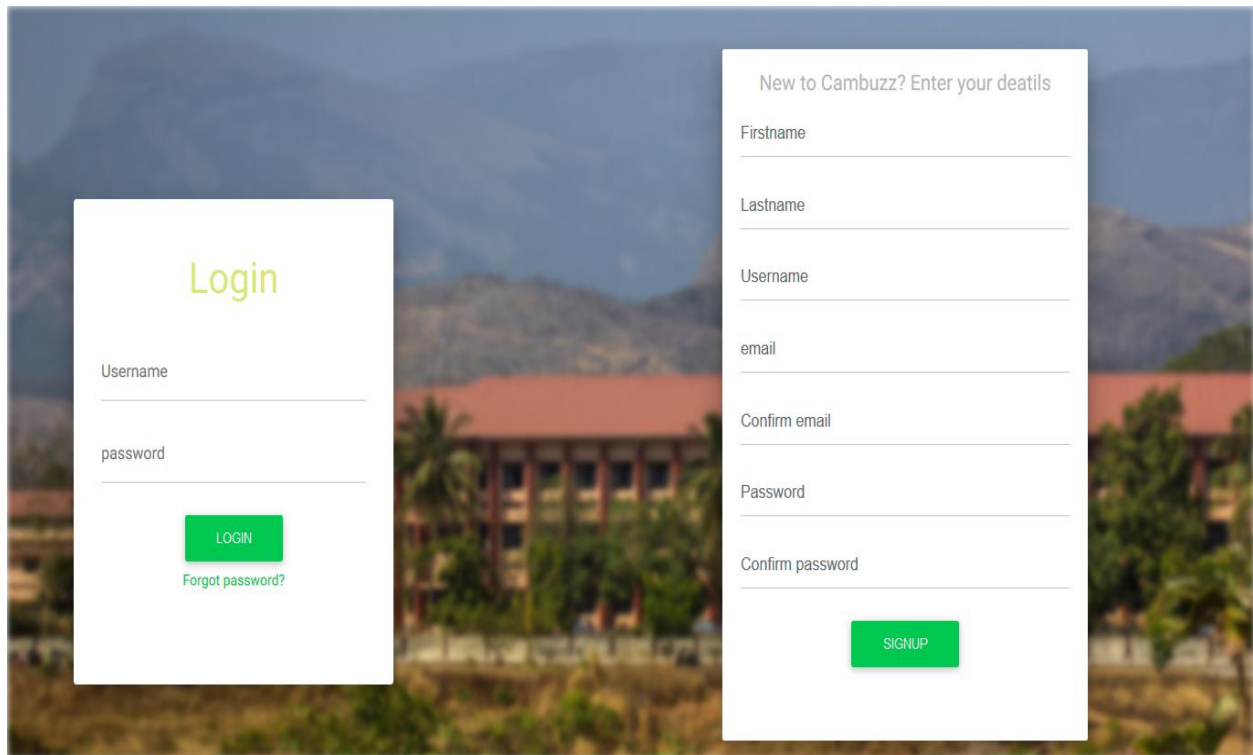

The home page which can be navigated form the navigation bar, for a casual user, they can be directed to profile page since home page is only meant for the authority users. For the authority users, the home page contains posts to the campus dynamic page ( Screenshot B.8 ). The post section consists of picture upload section and a text upload section. The user can either post a photo with a picture description or can post text but not both. Once the user clicks the post button the post will be updated on the dynamic page ( Screenshot B.9).

The wall page can be navigated using the navigation bar. The wall will be updated with the posts by every user of the Cambuzz (Screenshot B.10). Any user can like or comment on the post. The comments once clicked the user will be redirected to a comment page where he/she can read all the comments made on that post (Screenshot B.11). The comments made by the user will be updated in real time in the list.

The forums page can be navigated through the navigation bar, the open discussion page with a post option on the main page (Screenshot B.12) and user can view the posts by clicking the button view posts (Screenshot B.13). The user can add posts to the forum page by entering the details on the post section provide and the post will be dynamically updated in the page itself and for further view the user can use the view posts. The each post comes with an option to reply on it (Screenshot B.14). Any valid user can reply to any posts.

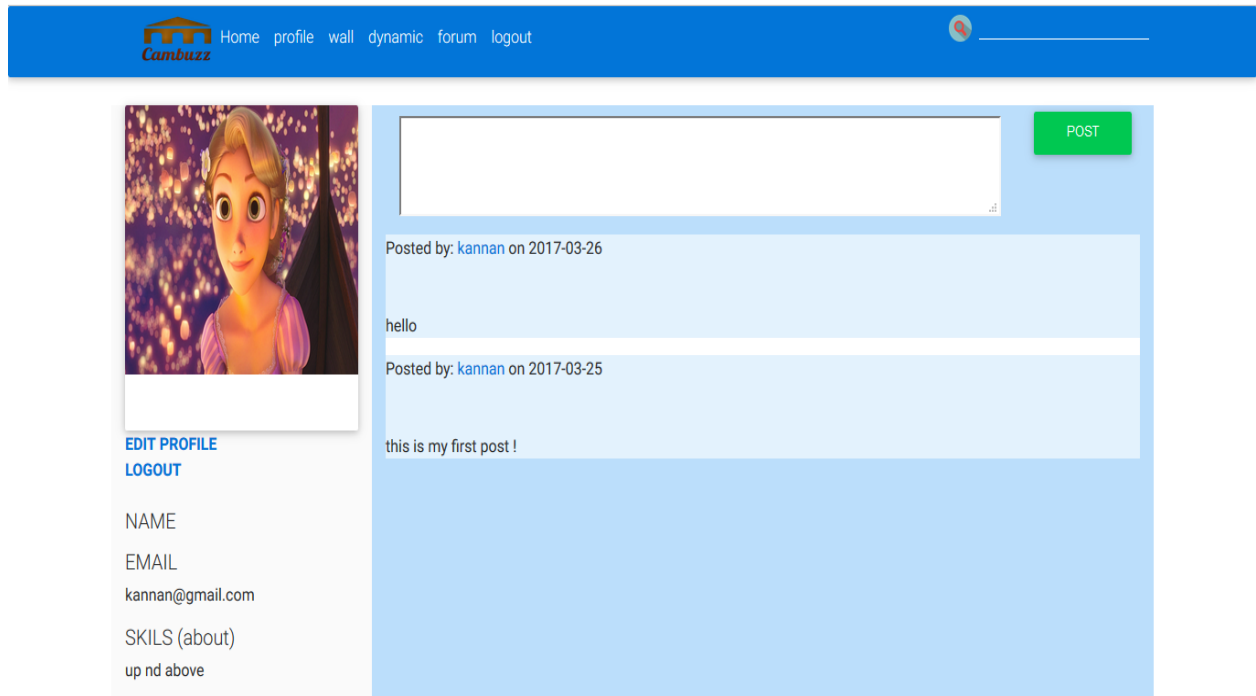

The user can logout from the session using the logout button provided on the navigation bar. After the logout the user will be redirected to the login page.
